SELECT POETRY.

RECONCILIATION.

My old and much worn army coat
Has changed since it was new!
For when our civil war was fought
In battle's smoke 'twas blue.

But sun and rain have faded it
Since freedom won the day,
So I can hardly tell its hue
From that of southern gray.

Yes, time has faded out the dye
It showed in cruel strife,
And while the blue blends with the gray
Our country gains new life.

'Tis true the faded cape will lift
When angry breezes blow
And then behold the same old blue
Bright underneath will show!

But time goes on, and all things fade,
Yes, all must have their day.
E'en my old faded coat and I
Must also pass away.

Yet our great unity will live on,
Her sons will e'er be true,
For time all difference will blend,
As blends the gray and blue

Trusting in Providence.

'It's goin' to be a snappin' cold night, mother, and so I tell you,' said Miss Elsa Robbins, warming her claw like fingers over the blaze of an armful of pine logs which she had just flung on the fire, 'and I'm very glad, mother, that we've got the russet apples safe into the cellar, for it's on them I place my main dependence for the interest money this year.'

Mrs. Robbins sat knitting in the cushioned rocker—a wrinkled, bright eyed little old woman, whose caps were always spotlessly clean, and whose dresses never seemed to wear out.

'Frost, eh?' said she.

'I rather guess so,' responded Elsa, with a shiver. 'Stars shinin' like so many little diamonds specks, and a new moon behind the pines!'

'Well, it's a good thing we ain't stinted for wood,' cheerfully observed Mrs. Robbins.

'You're always finding out some good thing or other, mother,' said Elsa, a little petulantly.

'La, child, the world is full of 'em!' said Mrs. Robbins, who had a sweet, plaintive voice like a whip-poor-will. 'The Lord, He's a deal better to us than we deserve!'

'Well, then,' quaintly remarked Elsa 'I may as well tell you, now as ever, that the roof's leakin' dreadful bad.'

'Leakin', is it?' said Mrs. Robbins. 'Where?'

'Up garret,' said Elsa. 'Over the west store room.'

'Well, it's lucky it ain't leakin' over the rooms we live in,' said the inveterate old optimist. 'If it was to leak at all, it couldn't have selected a better spot.'

'And the fence is down in the north lot,' remarked Elsa, 'and neighbor Carter's cattle are all in!'

'Bless me!' said Mrs. Robbins. 'Well there ain't much but rock and mullin-stalks in that lot, anyhow, and neighbor Carter don't half feed his cattle. I'm glad the poor creatures can have a good bite for once in their lives!'

'And I've had a letter from Walter's widow,' added Elsa; 'and she wants to come here with her children.'

'Tell her to come,' said Mrs. Robbins. 'It ain't a fine city place, and maybe she and the little ones will find it hard to make out on mush and molasses and baked potatoes, as we do. But she's my nephew's widow, and she'll be welcome here.'

'But, mother,' said Elsa, 'think what you are doing. Another family in this cramped-up little house—a lot of noisy children, racing and screaming about—a fine lady to wait on, who is certainly as able to take care of herself as we are to take care of her. And you know that we owe a large bill at the grocer's, and we haven't paid for the cow yet, and the tailoress business is getting duller every year, now that folks have taken the notion to go to the city for their little boy's suits. And——'

'Well, child—well,' serenely interposed the old lady, 'God will provide. He always does. And it's a dreadful thing to be a widow and homeless. Write to her, Elsa, and tell her to come.'

'But she has no money to travel with,' bluntly added Elsa. 'She wants us to send her twenty dollars. She has written to Cousin Marrett, up at the Grange, and they won't even answer her letter.'

'Dear, dear! that's bad!' cooed Mrs. Robbins. 'No money at all. Poor soul; poor soul!'

'Well—but, mother,' pleaded Elsa, 'we haven't got any money either—to spare!'

'There's the chicken money,' said Mrs. Robbins, looking wistfully up.

'But that was to buy you a warm new cloak, mother.'

'Well, I'll make the old gray shawl do for another year,' said Mrs. Robbins. 'And Walter's widow must have money to pay her traveling expenses—poor thing! It was very wrong of Marrett not to answer her letter—very. But Marrett and her husband was always close. It's their nature I suppose.'

'You dear old mother!' said Elsa, 'let the widow and her children come. I'll follow your advice, and put my trust in Providence.'

And she sat down and wrote to Walter's widow, inclosing that last twenty-dollar bill, which was to have bought the warm winter cloak for the old lady, who was so contentedly knitting in the coral glow of the firelight.

Mrs. Walter Robbins was sitting by the fire also, but not such a fire as illumines the farm-house kitchen with a softer shine, than any electric light. It was a mere handful of coals, in a rusted grate, over which she bent with a shudder, as the wind howled by, shaking the window-panes and rattling the paper shades. She was mending the children's stockings and as she worked a little girl crept out of the bed and stole across the floor to her side

'Mamma, I can't get warm,' said she. Is't there any fire?'

'There's a fire, dear,' said Mrs. Robbins; but we can't have much, for there is only a peck of coal left in the box.'

'Mamma,' went on the child, 'why don't our fires shine red and bright like the fires I see through other people's windows, sometimes?'

We can't afford it, dear,' sighed the widow. 'If you let the coal blaze and crakle it soon turns into ashes, and we must economise.'

'Mammr,' spoke up a tiny voice from the bed, 'I didn't eat quite enough supper. Can't I have another half slice of bread?'

'There is no more, Bessie,' said Mrs. Robbins, with a pang, sharper than any serpent's tooth, at her heart. 'Go to sleep, Bessie, dear; you'll soon forget that you are hungry, and then, in the morning we are to start for the country, you know.'

Bessie's eyes sparkled.

'We can have all the milk that we want then, can't we, mamma?' said she.'

'And pick up nuts where they grow among the leaves, and eat apples without paying two cents apiece for them, said Lillie. 'Oh, mamma, why don't everyone live in the country? Mamma, don't you love Cousin Elsa and her mother? Is Cousin Elsa a little girl? Will she play with us?'

'I don't know,' said Mrs. Robbins, with a quiver in her voice 'No, she is not a child; she is a woman, like me. But I think she must be an angel in her heart.'

For Elsa Robbins' had been the first helping hand which had been stretched out to lift the poor little widow out of the abyss of troubles which had almost overwhelmed her since her husband died in the far Mexican lands where he had gone to make the fortune which, alas! was never made.

She had become sadly used to sharp words and cold glances, but kindness, sympathy, tender recognitions of her claims to kinship, were now precious to her.

Just then there came a heavy and creaking footstep on the floor—a tap at the door.

'Must be a mistake,' said Mrs. Robbins, spiritlessly. Nobody ever comes here.'

But she rose and opened the door. There stood a stout, middle-aged man, with cheerful blue eyes, a ruddy complexion, and leg of mutton whiskers slightly sprinkled with gray.

'Does Mrs. Walter Robbins live here?' he asked.

* * * * * * *

Miss Elsa had made waffles for supper, and had fried some fresh crullers, brown and light as butterfly-wings. She had brought in the parlor lamp, and hunted up two little china mugs, handleless, and with the gilt inscription faded off, which had been hers and her dead sister's, as children, a long time ago.

'They'll please the little ones,' she thought.

And Mrs. Robbins, in her clean cap, sat smiling by the hearthstone, when Walter's widow came in, her black dress powdered over with snow which had begun to fall at the gathering of dusk, and with the two little girls clinging to her hand.

'My dear,' said Mrs Robbins, 'you are welcome—kindly welcome—you and the dear little girls!'

And Elsa came in, her face softened for the moment, and led them hospitably to the fire.

'It's a poor place,' said she; 'but mother is right—you are welcome!'

The children looked timidly around at the black beams which traversed the roof overhead—the deep set windows, with their broad ledges filled with musk-plants and fish geraniums—the strings of red peppers above the mantle—and the brass candlesticks, which glittered as if they were made of gold, and then the fire—the great, open chimney-place—the blazing logs—the funnily-shaped andirons, with round heads, and the great Maltese cat, asleep upon the gaudy rag rug. Was it all true? or were they dreaming?

But when it came to hot waffles, and maple molasses, cookies, with fennel-seeds in them, and—just as much milk as they could drink out of those dear little antique mugs—the children decided the matter in their own minds, that they were not dreaming at all. And after they had gone to sleep in a bed-room just off the kitchen, where the sheets smelled of sweet-clover, and the wall paper was covered with bunches of cabbage-roses, with impossibly green leaves, and blue ribbon fillets around the stems, Mrs. Walter Robbins found courage to thank the friends who had been so good to her in her necessity.

'But there's something I haven't told you yet,' she said, timidly. 'I couldn't write it, because I did not know it myself at the time that I appealed to you. I am not so poor as every one thought. Poor, dear Walter's mining ventures have turned out better than any one expected. A lawyer from the South came to see me last night, and told me that I am to have at least a thousand dollars a year.'

'Eh?' said Elsa, almost incredulously.

'It ain't possible?' chirped Mrs. Robbins.'

'And,' went on Mrs. Walter, 'if you will allow me to live here and share it with you—'

'No,' said Miss Elsa. 'We have no right to it.'

'But,, pleaded the widow, 'you were willing to share all that you had with me.'

'That is quite another thing,' replied Elsa.

'No, it, isn't said Mrs. Walter. 'It's the same exactly. And I have always longed for a home in the country, and it is so lovely here; and—and I feel that I love you already, and I should be miserable anywhere else. Please—please let me stay!'

And what could Mrs. Robbins and Miss Elsa say but 'Yes.'

And when the widow retired to her room, Elsa looked at the old lady, with tears in her eyes.

'Mother,' said she, 'you were right. Providence has provided. The moment I made up my mind to leave off caring and planning, and trust in God, He has laid a blessing at my feet. I think I will never doubt or despair again.'—Helen Forrest Graves.

WRECKED BY HIS UNTEMPERED AMBITION—A LIGHTHOUSE ON THE SHOALS

"I ought to have stopped five years before I did; but I thought it wouldn't amount to anything, so I kept on. I was a fool, of course—but who isn't, when ambition and the chance of making money spurs him on? I only hope I shall get well enough to digest another square meal some time without a rebellion in my stomach."

The speaker was one of the best known civil engineers and mining experts in this country; hardy by nature as a buffalo, but broken down by hard study and the merciless lashing stimulus [illegible] to his mind not only by his own hand during earlier part of his career. At fifty he is prematurely gray, bent in form and dispirited. Dyspepsia did it—Dyspepsia, the self-inflicted curse of the American in every department of toil.

"I am thirty-five years old" writes Mr. Chas. H. Watts, of West Somers, Putnam county, N. Y., and had suffered from dyspepsia for fifteen years. Tried everything. At last gave PARKER'S GINGER TONIC a chance to show what it could do for me. It proved its ability by curing me. I recommend it to all who are suffering from this dreadful disease." Mr. G. R. Cole, druggist, of Carmel, N. Y., certifies to the truth of Mr. Watts' statement.

Gloom, despondency, hopelessness, disgust with all labor, sleeplessness, horrid dreams to render bed-time like the hour of execution to a criminal—these are some of Dyspepsia's fruits. The Dyspeptic knows what Coleridge meant when he said "Night is my hell." PARKER'S GINGER TONIC cures Dyspepsia, purifies the blood, disperses Rheumatism and all chronic ailments. Price 50 cents and $1 a bottle. HISCOX & Co., New York.

Great relief is received by even those in the Last Stages of Consumption. In croup and whooping cough it is unequaled. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by A. B. Armstrong and E. F. RHODE ISLAND is a small State, but KATE SPRAGUE'S worthless husband does not carry it in his pocket.

THE temperance people of Buffalo are urging the restriction of the liquor traffic, by raising the rate of license fees. If hotel proprietors were made to pay $1,000 and saloon keepers $500 a year for the glorious privilege of selling whiskey the revenue would be greatly increased and the number of low groggshops very much lessened.

DESPATCHES published in all the newspapers tell of a prize fight at Du Bois, Clearfield county, in which one Linksey was instantly killed, having his neck broken in a fall. Of all the prize fights that have recently taken place in this country, this is the only one that has ended satisfactorily to the better minded classes of the people.

THE President has appointed Hon. WALTER Q. GRESHAM, of Indiana, to the vacant Postmaster Generalship. He is at present one of the United States circuit Judges, and his name was prominently considered for a cabinet nomination by President GARFIELD. He is a man of eminent ability and great force of character, and will prove a valuable accession to the President's cabinet advisers.

PETER COOPER, the aged philanthropist of New York city, died at his residence in that city yesterday morning, at the advanced age of 92 years. Born in poverty and early forced to earn his livelihood, he became by diligence and business enterprise one of New York's wealthiest and most respected citizens and benefactors. When a young man he did not stand about with his hands in his pockets cursing his luck because he did not get an easy job. Remember that, young man.

The President Pro Tem.

Mary Clemmer, in the Independent.

George F. Edmunds is still in the prime of manhood, having just passed his fifty fifth birth day. With his bald head, his spare, white side locks, and heavy white beard, he looks at least 65. There never was a Senator so mentally positive, so personally unostentatious. He seems never to do anything or to say anything for effect; but only because it ought to be done, because it should be said. He never tries to be impressive. He never gesticulates. He never lifts up his voice. With his hands dropped by his side, looking straight ahead, he says what he has to say simply, swiftly, for he never halts for a word, and never begins a sentence twice. Yet his sentences carry such mental momentum that a very few of them sometimes, striking to the root of some unthought of law, with a single blow knock the bottom from a debate of days, ending it at once. He never "doctors" the proofs of the Congressional Record, that his speech may go amended to his countrymen; but whatever he says here goes to the people just as he says it — nothing added, nothing taken from it. His colleagues complain sometimes that he breaketh his mind upon too small matters, and that he is too schoolmasterish; yet his nomination by the Republican caucus as the President pro tem. of the Senate met no opposition. Senators who might have preferred a personal friend conceding the fitness of the choice.

Counting the Cash.

The committee appointed to examine the cash in the United States treasury, and the accounts of the late treasurer, began work after the close of business on Saturday by making an account of the teller's cash, so that there need be no interference with the business of the office. The reserve vault was also sealed up preparatory to taking an inventory of its contents, as turned over by Mr. Gilfillan. It is thought that it will occupy two or three weeks. There has not been a thorough overhauling of the treasurer's office for ten years, the last full examination being the one made during Treasurer Spinner's time. When Spinner turned over the office to Treasurer New, the latter was willing to accept the cash and accounts without examination, and his bondsmen also being willing, the secretary of the treasury dispensed with an examination. The same thing occurred Treasurer Wyman succeeded New and when Gilfillan succeeded Wyman. The latter has expressed his willingness to forgo an examination on the present occasion, but the secretary thinks that so long a time has intervened since the last count that one should be made.

The committee will be assisted in the work by a force of twenty or thirty clerks, detailed from the offices, other than the treasurer's office. A count will be made of the old notes in the redemption division, new notes in the reserve vault, the silver and bonds held in trust. President Upton, of the committee, has decided that an actual count must be made in all cases. The packages of notes will be opened and counted, as will also be the bags of gold and silver coin. He will personally assume charge of the work of comparing the cash on hand with the treasurer's accounts, and with the accounts of the disbursing officers.

Personal and Political.

Mrs. Alonzo B. Cornell is the only woman in New York city who has a key to the fire-alarm boxes.

The anti toy pistol law in Maine makes the man who sells the weapon responsible for any damage it may do.

A. Graham Bell, of telephone fame, who was a poor man seven years ago, is now said to be worth $6,000,000.

Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, repeats his belief that David Davis is the man for the Republicans to nominate for President.

Miss Anna Dawes, daughter of the Massachusetts Senator, will, it said, accept an editorial position on the Pittsfield Journal.

Dorsheimer of New York, predicts that that State will cast her vote for McDonald, of Indiana, for President in the National Democratic Convention.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says the Standard Oil Company has $1,000,000 invested in newspapers which it employs to mislead and defraud the public.

A little Philadelphia boy was recently heard to pray: "O Lord, bless brother Bill and make him as good a boy as I am." That boy will be a Pennsylvania reformer some day.

It is said none of the Garfield doctors will speak to each other now. If they could be locked up in a room and made to doctor one another the bulletin world have new fun.—Picayune.

Marriott Brosius, Esq., of Lancaster, who was defeated for congressman-at-large at the November election, is reported to have found out that he is one of the heirs to $38,000,000 left by a relative in Germany.

A Southern journal says there are three seasons in Florida—the orange, vegetable and invalid; the last paying the best. In the summer the Floridians live on yams and sugar-cane, and in the winter on Yankee.

The President has has fairly conquered the respect and good will of the country in the face of the most embarrassing and hostile circumstances. He has it by simply minding not his own business but that of the country—and minding it well.—Buffalo Com. Adv'r.

The men who voted for Folger are not ashamed of it, and have no apologies to make. They would only be too glad to get another chance to vote for him. They stood up for their party and its principles and were for reform within and not outside the party.—N. Y. Com. Adv'r.

MADRID, April 2.—The marriage of Prince Louis Ferdinand, of Bavaria, to the Infanta Maria Della Paz, was celebrated in the chapel of the royal palace to-day with the usual state ceremonies. The patriarch of the Indies pronounced the marriage, and the king and queen of Spain acted as sponsors.

The bill introduced in the Tennessee legislature to pay the interest on three hundred thousand dollars of State bonds known as the Peabody bonds, held for the use of the Peabody Institute in Baltimore, failed for want of a constitutional majority. There is no redeeming feature in the history of Tennessee repudiation; it is embodied dishonesty from end to end and from top to bottom.

James I. Feather, a witness for the prosecution in the trial of N. L. Dukes for the murder of Captain Nutt, is said to have received a number of letters before the trial, written by Dukes' political friends, urging him not to testify against the assassin, and threatening him with dire vengence should he do so. It is claimed that the letters in question were written by prominent Democrats, and Mr. Feather has expressed his intention of making them public.

Senator Tabor, of Colorado, recently remarked to a brother Senator: "I've got more money than all the Presidents of the United States ever had, from Washington to Arthur. Yes, sir, I'm richer than all of them combined." As the Colorado Senator is worth at least $10,000,000 he probably spoke the truth. Two of the most illustrious Presidents, Jefferson and Monroe, were so poor that personal friends frequently contributed to pay their debts. They left names that will live forever, but no money.

The death of Postmaster-General Howe leaves in active public life only three men who, with him, occupied seats in the United States Senate when President Lincoln called it together in special session at the outbreak of the war. They are Senators Anthony and Sherman, and Daniel Clark, United States District Judge for New Hampshire. Not more than half a dozen other members of that senate are now living, among them being Mr. Doolittle, who was then Mr. Howe's colleague. The Vice President, Hannibal Hamlin, and the Chaplain, Dr. Byron Sunderland, also yet survive.

England's wealthiest baronet is said to be Sir John Ramsden, of Byrom, Yorkshire. His rent-roll is computed at $850,000 a year. He owns almost the whole of Huddersville, the great manufacturing centre. The little bit he doesn't own was a very Naboth's vineyard to his father, who, according to popular tradition, once offered to its Quaker owner to cover it with sovereigns if he would sell it. "Edgewise, friend Ramsden?" quoth the Quaker, "in that case it is thine; otherwise all Huddersville must still belong to thee and me." "Edgewise" was rather more than the baronet could swallow.

Dr. B. Sweeny, of Jefferson county, has sent to Senator McKnight a champion belt, in recognition of the prowess displayed by McKnight in the recent fistic encounter between him and his fellow-Senator, Emery, on the floor of the Senate. Dr. Sweeny is one of McKnight's constituents and bears a pugilistic reputation. McKnight often quoted Scripture in order to convince Sweeny that men who hammered one another did not have the best chances of reaching heaven. It was natural, therefore, that Sweeny should get even with McKnight by sending this belt. It is more durable than ornate, being lined with stout duck, covered on the outside with calico and fastened by a galvanized iron buckle, big and strong enough to suspend a hippopotamus. There is an appropriate inscription, giving names of donor and recipient, as well as the date of the combat. Senator McKnight is proud of the belt. He keeps it in his Senatorial desk to show to people who dare say that Emery got the best of the battle.—Philadelphia Times.

Masonic Hall.

The improvements that are being made in the Masonic Hall in this borough, will, when completed leave that room as pleasant a place of the kind as can be found in this section of the country, and indeed, far ahead in point of elegance, of any hall in any town of equal size within a long distance. The rooms have been artistically papered, the ceilings ornamented with emblems of the order, while the carpets, which are new and of splendid quality are entirely made up of figures composed of masonic emblems. The work has been done at a great cost, but the improved appearance, convenience and comfort of their quarters will, the members of the fraternity think, amply repay them for the outlay.

Hatching Chickens With a Wooden Hen.

The Lock Haven Journal says that Mr. R. I. Cromley, of North Fairview street, has constructed for himself an incubator for the purpose of hatching eggs by artificial heat. Its capacity is twenty dozen, and is now being tried with good success. The proper temperature is secured by the heat of kerosene lamps. It requires about three weeks to hatch the eggs. Yesterday we saw quite a number of little chickens just out of the shell, while others were breaking the shell. The young chickens are kept in a well heated building until able to endure the weather.

Reaction for Faith.

A more determined and persistent attempt than that of the past twenty years to bring churches and pastors, the Bible and believers, under ridicule and into contempt, has never been made. It has been successfully endured; we believe that time will prove that it has been triumphantly endured. The brunt of the conflict has fallen upon the clergy and they have held their own. There are indications that the preachers have won the fight. The standard of scholarship among clergymen has never been higher than it is to day, and the proportion of men of large attainments has much increased. The papers contributed to religious reviews, the books published and the articles furnished to religious weeklies constitute full proof of the correctness of this assertion. The people of the United States have never had better preaching than they have had this day. Christian Intelligencer.

Gov. Cleveland of New York, was ten days ago the nominee of the democratic party for President in 1884. His veto of the bill reducing elevated railroad charges to five cents settles his chances for the nomination about as effectually as the most pronounced republican would desire. We salute in despondency the five cent governor of New York. But the democracy made two other five-cent governors last November. Butler is one of them. He cut down his newspaper subscription five cents a day. Pattison is another. He cuts down his expenses five cents a day by refusing to ride in the street cars. The five-cent governors should have some good horsemen to teach them that penurious living never yet put a horse's nose under the wire first. A five cent governor will make a five-cent President.—Kansas City Journal.

March Weather.

This month has achieved the distinction, not only of being very severe on the old saw and the prophets, but also as having the lowest mean temperature, least amount of rain and snow and the greatest total velocity on the records for thirteen years. The average March temperature of the preceding 12 years is 31.3 degs., that of the past month 24 degs., showing a deficiency of 7.3 degs. The highest temperature was 49.7 degs. on the first. With one exception (45 degs. in 1881) this is the lowest maximum on record for the month. The lowest temperature was 3 degs. on the eighth. The record shows only one other instance of so low a temperature,—in 1872.

The mercury fell below the freezing point every day in the month and there were only six days on which it rose above that degree in the shade. Rain or snow fell on twenty days, on six of these the amount was too small to measure. The total amount of precipitation was 1.08 inches which is little more than one-third of the average quantity for 13 years.

The average cloudiness was much less than usual. There were only 12 entirely cloudy days while there were 10 entirely clear.

The prevailing direction of the wind was southwest, highest velocity 42 miles an hour southwest on the 12th, on which date the greatest daily movement, 633 miles, occured. The total movement for the month was 9,497 miles or near 13 miles an hour.

CHAUNCY F. BLACK, son of his father, will be entertained by the Young Men's Democratic Association on Saturday evening next, when he will tell them what he knows about Democracy.

[illegible] for the first quarter of 1883 is greater than in the corresponding months of the two years preceding. Bradstreet reports 8,189 in 1883, 2,146 in 1882, and 1,9?6 in 1880. The liabilities are placed at $42,235,335 this year to $29,010,994 for 1882. The reason for this increase of mercantile disasters is found in the abnormal condition of affairs that has existed since the beginning of the year. The tariff and tax agitation, the destructive floods and storms and a tight money market have all contributed towards swelling the lists of bankrupts. Fortunately, however, the tariff and tax laws have been reconstructed and the floods have subsided so there is no reason why the remaining nine months of the year should be fairly prosperous in a business way.—Buffalo Commercial Advertiser.

By Universal Accord,

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative Pill that medical science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other Pills can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

The World Challenged.

For Man & Beast

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty-five years, and our innumerable certificates of cure prove it to be an unparalleled success. We do not offer it as an Internal Remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy in action as a specific when externally applied. This being comprehended entirely of this, is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains or from any cause where a Liniment is demanded. The Oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic Spinal Disease and paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally, for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth, we guarantee relief. You will find a trial of it the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of oils and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 50 and 25 cents per bottle. NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Another thirty days or so, and where the snow-bird pranks,
A dozen sons of Italy will kerosene their cranks,
And, grinding up the innards of that hurdy-gurdy thing,

—Pay your water tax.

—H. W. Rubin has put in a stock of clothing.

—Our merchants are preparing to receive new goods.

—To-day the air feels spring like for the first time this winter.

—It may be a little early to uncover the fountains in the court yard, but not much.

—A two or three days session of court was held this week, Judge Olmstead on the bench.

—Potato creek has within its banks at this time a large amount of logs, aggregating many millions of feet.

—The young people enjoyed a pleasant dance at the Opera House after the dramatic entertainment Tuesday evening.

—The accumulated pile of snow and ice on the south side of Main street will, it is hoped, disappear by the 1st of July.

—The license of Ford and Hicks No. 2 Chambers St. Bradford, was this week transferred by the court to Frank B. Goodrich.

—The school directors of the borough have re-engaged Prof. Sullivan for the short Spring term, with power to select his own assistants.

—The firemens fair at Bradford started with a boom, ran through the ten days of its continuance with irresistible force, ending at last in a blaze of glory.

—Jersey Shore was visited by an $85,000 fire Tuesday morning. The Odd Fellows and Masonic Halls and post-office, together with a number of business places, were destroyed.

—To see with what assinine blindness the Bradford Evening Star will follow a mistake made by a morning paper where it gets its telegraph, refer to the appointment of Postmaster General Greshan.

—A syndicate of railroad men representing nearly all the roads either constructed or proposed in the oil country, have been stopping at the St. James Hotel, Bradford, but what for has not yet transpired.

—The ladies and gentlemen composing the Eldred dramatic troupe visited the jail previous to the entertainment Tuesday evening. It is due to them to add that none of them had occasion to visit it afterward.

—Postmaster Sprague has had printed and posted in the principal business places in the borough neat and intelligible placards announcing the arrival and departure of mails. It is very convenient for reference.

—The Court ordered a venire to be issued for the drawing of 36 jurors for a special court for the trial of civil causes for the third Monday of May. The trial list is to be made up of twenty causes selected from the oldest of those put down for trial.

—Good natured people who feel like congratulating Chet. King upon the improvement of his voice as a singer when passing his place of business, will be disappointed to learn that it is only the sweet tones of a musical parrot which they hear.

—The Potter Journal states that the wives of some of the Masons in Coudersport have formed a society in opposition to that ancient order. They propose to have their meetings "on the same evenings as the Masons and at as late an hour." Potter is a queer country.

—The carpenters and painters are again at work finishing ex-Sheriff Bartwells new house on King street, which was enclosed and roofed at the closing in of cold weather last fall. It will be when finished one of the finest and largest private residences in the borough.

—We cannot commend the musical taste of those who can enjoy the music of a brass band with bass drum attachment in a closed room or a small hall. Brass band music is a good thing and the boys play well, but their efforts are better appreciated under the blue air of heaven than under the roof of an Opera House.

—J. G. Boyer has ordered of the government fish commissioner a supply of German carp, which he will place in his fish pond for propagation. They are an excellent species of fish, breed rapidly, grow to a large size and are very long lived. Their value is such that not more than twenty can be sent to any one individual.

—The depot of the B. B. & K. railroad at this place could hardly have been located at a more inconvenient point for the accommodation of the business interests of the borough. In view of this fact a petition numerously signed has been forwarded to the officers of the road asking that a new and more convenient location be selected.

—In a prize fight at DuBois, Tuesday, between McLaughlin and Martin Linksey, miners, about eighteen years of age, six rounds were fought. In the last round both men clinched and fell, Linksey breaking his neck and dying instantly. McLaughlin surrendered. If the authorities would now hang the victor, it would make a complete success in this instance of brutal sport.

Painful Accident.

A most painful and possibly very serious accident befel Mrs. E. M. Howard, of Williamsville, Pa., mother-in-law of Judge Brownell, at the Buffalo depot Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Howard had accompanied the Judge on his return from Ridgway whither he was called last week by the death of Judge Dickinson, and when they had arrived at the depot here the Judge left Mrs. Howard—who by the way is eighty-three years old—standing on the platform while he gave his attention to the baggage, and during his absence some awkward person ran against her with a truck, throwing her down and breaking her left arm near the wrist. Dr. McCoy was called, and reduced the fracture and all was done that could be to make the old lady comfortable. We are pleased to say that the lady has recovered from the shock and hope she may recover entirely from her injury. It was of course purely accidental, but the lady's age considered it is barely excusable.

He Will Pass.

A young man bearing the significant cognomen of Pass, in the employ of a Kane liveryman, drove two passengers to Alton last Sunday, and then took it into his head to drive the rig to Bradford and dispose of it. He had nearly completed the negotiations for the sale of the entire outfit, team, spring wagon, robes, &c., to a Bradford liveryman, when a telegram was received from the owner to hold the property and the thief. As a result of his bit of enterprise, young Pass was passed over to the county jail and from thence will probably be passed on to Allegheny.

The Haskill Oil Well.

We are not proposing to buy any oil and have therefore no desire to knock the market way down. In fact we should like to see the price of oil go up to at least two dollars a barrel and would not willingly say a word to prevent that much desired event. But we must give the news, regardless of results, and will therefore state that the old Haskill well which has been producing for years, since it was first drilled, not only holds to its original amount but is even improving. It has not been cleaned out or agitated for years, and yet it is stated that it now flows about four barrels a day. The owners of the well find a ready market for its production for lubricating purposes at $5.00 a barrel delivered at the depots in barrels. How many old wells are there in the Bradford field still flowing four barrels a day of one dollar oil?

"Among the Breakers."

The young people composing the Eldred Dramatic Association favored our people with a rendering of the above mentioned play at the Opera House on Tuesday evening. They were greeted with a large audience and created an excellent impression. Very great excellancy is not expected of amateur actors and actresses, and the audience were agreeably and happily surprised that the portrayal of the different characters were so faithfully rendered and that each performed his part so correctly and with so little of the awkwardness and hesitancy so apt to mar the pleasure of listening to amateurs. The young people deserve a great deal of credit for the amount of earnest work the rendering of the play indicated, and merit a generous commendation.

Personal Mention.

B. W. Smith Esq. came over from Canoe Place yesterday.

Andy Carr, of the Sunday Mail, visited the county seat to-day.

L. A. Mitchell came up from Ridgway a few days ago to look upon old friends.

Rev. H. Peck, of South Byron N. Y., made a brief visit to friends in Bradford and Smethport this week.

A. D. Gould, of the Eldred Eagle, and E. A. Barden, of Eldred, were among the callers at the MINER office this week.

W. J. Davis, the alleged Port Allegany aspirant for the democratic nomination, was in town to-day industriously engaged in shaking hands with the boys.

Al. Love, the well known conductor, has so far recovered from the effects of the accident at the Ischua bridge is to resume his runs on the B. N. Y. & P. R. R.

Jud. Newman was in town on Monday, receiving the congratulations of friends upon a welcome accession to his family. He is now the father of two sons—and both boys.

Patsey Fragner, of Bradford, came over to the capital Tuesday in the interest of his cigar manufactory, and as becometh a gentleman made the MINER a pleasant call.

Miss Eva Beers, teacher of the intermediate department of the borough school during the term just closed, has entered the State Normal School at Edinboro, Erie county.

Jabez Beckwith returned yesterday from an extended trip in the west. He is not in love with Nebraska, and thinks the old commonwealth of Pennsylvania is yet as good a country to live and die in as any other.

James Maguire, of the Grand Central, has put on his war paint and is looking for the Smethport correspondent of the Potter Journal, because it was stated in a recent letter to that paper that he was about to get married. Correspondents should abstain from assaults upon people's character.

About a week previous to his death Col. Curtis recalled some curious coincidences in the lives of himself and Alexander H. Stephens. Born within sixty days of each other, they served together in congress for four years between 1850-55 and became warm personal friends. Then they drifted apart and did not meet again until 1873, when each reappeared in congress and their old friendship was renewed. The death of both within a few days of each other completes the comparison.—Erie Dispatch.

UNDER THE WHEELS.

NATHAN BOYLAN CRUSHED TO DEATH ON THE B. N. Y. & P. RAILROAD AT PORT ALLEGANY.

Wednesday afternoon a very considerable excitement was caused by the return of the train that goes east shortly after twelve o'clock, and it was at once surmised that something of a very serious nature had transpired. At once the people began to flock toward the depot to learn the cause of the return. A MINER attachee being in the village at once joined the march of the curious, and arriving at the railway depot saw a sight that it were better one should always be spared from.

Lying on a truck, such as is used for the handling of baggage about all stations, was a man, or the lifeless remains of what was once Nathan Boylan, a millwright, and who had for some time been a resident of Port Allegany.

It seems that he was coming down the track above town, and while crossing the long trestle just above the village, was met by the train and failing, for some reason to get out of the way was run over and instantly killed, having his skull split open in front, through which a great portion of his brains oozed out, leaving only a dark and unsightly cavity, and giving to the face a most hideous appearance.

Nathan Boylan was about fifty five or or sixty years of age, judging from appearances, was of slight build, and showed, as he lay dead what seemed to indicate a long and unsuccessful struggle for a competence, or even the necessaries of life. He is said to have been a soldier in the war of the rebellion, and it is also reported that he has a son, now residing somewhere in Michigan, who was also in the army. Boylan is said to be a pensioner.

While gazing on the face of the unfortunate man man, a cry of "Oh, my God" startled the curious bystanders, and at the same time a woman of perhaps forty years, came up to where the body lay, and in terms of endearment embraced the lifeless and ghastly remains and gave vent to the most bitter sorrow, and lamentation. Waiting until her grief had in some measure spent itself your reporter approached her, and in a short conversation with her learned that her name was Hulda Adams, that she is at present living in the vicinity of Comes Creek, where Boylan had recently lived, and that she was to have married the unfortunate man in a few weeks.

Justice Wright was notified of the affair, but decided not to hold an inquest, as, under the recent ruling of the Court there was no reason for it and no necessity of incurring the expense that would follow. What will be done with the remains, I am unable to inform you at this time, as the relatives, if any are living, have not yet been heard from.

Donation

There will be a donation for the benefit of the Rev. Mr. Morville at the residence of Jonathan Colegrove, at Colegrove, Pa., on Wednesday evening, April 11th, 1883. Warm sugar and a good time may be expected and all are invited.

By order of Com.

For the gentlemen I have a very large and complete line of boots and shoes. Call and examine my stock and see the styles, and get prices. A. B. ROWLEY, Eldred, Pa.

Business Change.

Charlie Keefer has sold his one half interest in the Water street blacksmithing and shoeing shop to Thomas Purtle, who is known hereabouts as a most skillful shoer. The shop will be furnished with new machinery and appurtenances for continuing the business on a broader scale then heretofore.

Bring It Home.

The party who borrowed a long handled carpet stretcher of me will confer a great favor by returning it, as I would like the privilege of using it.

For the Spring Term.

Prof. Sullivan has engaged Miss Mary C. Simpson to take charge of the intermediate department and Miss M. M. Barbour the primary department of the borough schools the coming Spring term. Both have established reputations as experienced and capable teachers.

THE best Spring tooth Harrow in the market is to be found at Sprague's. Farmers would do well to call early and examine in order to have their orders filled for spring use.

Weld's Mammoth Carpet House.

When one takes a walk through a large stock of goods, the question arises, where do they all go to, and then we are apt to wonder whether the merchant has not overreached himself and loaded down with a stock that he will be likely to have to carry a long time. These questions were forcibly suggested only the other day while wandering through the immense Carpet House of DeSilver Weld, No. 100, Main street Bradford, and but for Mr. Weld's well known judgment in the selection of goods, both in quality and amount, one might naturally entertain a fear for his safety, but that gentleman has been too long in business here amongst our people not to know what the trade requires, or just what he can or cannot do. Among the piles of goods with which Mr. Welds' store is filled may be found carpets from the looms of every country in the world, rugs from Persia, India, Turkey and Japan, linen household goods of all descriptions and from all sources, and in short and in fine this store is a perfectly stocked depot of supplies from which the householder can draw ad libitum. His customers will be glad to know that Mr. Weld may always be found at the store himself.

Excelsior Poultry Yards.

Henry Hering, proprietor of the Excelsior Poultry Yards, Smethport, Pa., will furnish eggs for hatching, from No. 1 stock, at $2.00 for 13 eggs, or $3.00 for 26 eggs. His stock embraces the following varieties: Plymouth Rocks, Buff Cochins, Light Brahmas, Wyandottes, Black and Silver Spangled Hamburgs, White Rose Comb and Brown Single Comb Leghorns, Black Javas. Satisfaction guaranteed.

SMETHPORT, April 5, 1883—3t.

BRADFORD.

ITEMS PICKED UP BY THE MINER DRIFTING ON THE WIND.

The Mail is yet advertising for sale that "ten story house with nine rooms."

John H. Whitcomb, of the third ward, was duly installed as a member of the common council.

The newest name I have heard mentioned in connection with the county treasurship is that of Coroner Bannon.

The health physician has issued an appeal to the citizens to clean up their back yards. It is largely sugar coated.

There were some funny things connected with the Mayoralty inauguration ceremonies, but they need not be mentioned.

James Lindery who was elected to the common council from the first ward has decided not to qualify, he believing he can secure the appointment as city clerk. He ought not to be elected.

The printers of the city have elected Harry Welsh to represent them at the coming International Typographical Union, at Cincinnati. No more creditable representation could have been selected from among the craft in the city.

Miss Lettie Daul and her sister Mrs. Williams, who died, the former in Los Angelos, Cal., and the latter in Cincinnati while accompanying the remains of Miss Daul home, were interred in Oak Hill cemetry Tuesday. The family have the sympathy of the whole community in this their double bereavement.

Thomas Goodwin, the well known Main street caterer, and who was declared defeated in his race for a seat in the council, has declared his determination to demand his seat and contest his right to it. Mr. Goodwin claims that he was elected, and that by a manipulation of the figures he was counted out and he don't propose that any such little game shall be played, therefore the contest.

Last week in writing to you I had something to say about the animal known as a "shyster" lawyer, but did not say half as much as the case required, or as the people would be willing to endorse. I am now going to say that he has a fit associate in the "quack" doctor. Of him Bradford has all she can take care of, has had him, and expects to have him for a long time yet. We have alleged doctors who have no more theoretical knowledge of materia medica than a hog has of a holiday, who by dint of advertising, and walking the streets with distended stomach and wise looks, have succeeded in duping many of the people and getting their money from them without returning its equivalent. There is also another class of doctors, who have the education and other qualifications for the practice of their profession, but who have completely destroyed their chances of usefulness by continual whisky drinking. There are a good many of our physicians, really useful men, who cannot now be found sober enough to be safe to trust in the handling of dangerous medicines. These doctors may be readily recognized. They are to be met on the streets at all hours of the night up to two or three o'clock in the morning, and then not seen again until twelve o'clock or later the next day. They were good men, might have been useful but they have destroyed the confidence of the people and now wander about at night, mostly in pairs, in quest of drinks and lunches that may be gratuitously extended.

The coronation of Mayor Broder took place Monday at twelve o'clock as the law directs, without any incident to mar the pleasure of the event, and, although it was thought at one time that the nihilists would occasion trouble, the retirement of Mayor Jordan and the inauguration of Mayor Broder was the occasion of one of the pleasantest little parties it has been my opportunity to attend for a long time. At high twelve, the councilmen and a respectably sized audience of prominent citizens being assembled, were called to order and on motion it was resolved to proceed at once to the pleasant duty of inducting Mayor Broder into the high office to which he had been called. The out going executive then took occasion to pay his respects to his fellow citizens of Bradford in a half hour speech which was full of friendliness to all, and showed that the speaker had all through the term of his office recognized the solid support the people of the city had always accorded him. He referred to the many changes that had taken place in city, State and Nation, since he took the official oath two years ago. He gave them credit for their enterprise and push, and predicted that Bradford would yet show ample returns for all that the people had done for her. In concluding his remarks he referred to his successor as a child of fortune, a man whom all loved and delighted to honor, and requested him to come to his feet and receive the oath of office, which was done. Immediately on taking and subscribing the oath, Mayor Broder read his inaugural message which from first to last was strong in retrenchment and civil service reform. He dwelt at some length on the broken credit of our city and his whole message leaned to the conclusion that this must be repaired, and all the people say amen.

Bradford, April 4th 1883.

PORT ALLEGANY.

This village has four lawyers with a strong prospect of another to be added soon.

F. J. Pradon, formerly of Coleville, has moved his billiard tables to Port Allegany and is doing a good business with them.

Where on earth does all the bark come from? It seems to me that I have seen bark enough since I have been here to cover the entire county over.

Lumbermen are very busy getting ready for the spring run of lumber as soon as the river is in proper condition. The run will not be up to the average of some years past.

I visited the Reporter office and found it neat and clean as ever, although editor Hughes was profuse in his apologies for the untidy appearance. Hughes has lost a valuable hen.

The Coudersport and Port Allegany R. R. has come to be quite an institution and is now making money for its owners, besides it lets the bark peelers of Potter county out of the woods occasionally.

A number of business men are considering the feasibility of conducting the water from some springs on the hillside, across the river, into the town for domestic and fire use. It is a good idea and should be carried out.

W. J. Davis is talked of considerably among democrats as a candidate for county treasurer. Mr. Davis has the qualifications as well as the confidence of his fellow citizens and if selected would make a strong run, but the next treasurer will not be a democrat.

The late temperance movement in this village has set the hotel men to guessing, and they express very serious doubts as to their prospects of having their licenses renewed at the coming court. The experience of Jamestown, N. Y., might be heeded to good advantage by the ultra temperance people of this part.

PENCILMAN.

ELDRED.

There is not in any other village in the county as much permanent improvement going on as there is in Eldred.

The village is sorely in need of water works, and some are sanguine of securing something of the kind before another fire occurs.

The village has but one house of ill repute and that one is conducted very quietly, probably because it is right beside the graveyard.

Hicks the well known restaurateur, formerly of Bradford, is doing a good business here and is one of the solid men of the town. It wouldn't be Eldred without Hicks.

Rev. Mr. Parker, an old soldier and a comrade of the Grand Army, has raised a controversy on the subject of "circus riders" or "daughters of the regiment" in the late war, and the prospect now is that if he don't drop it he will succeed in proving that his service was rendered mostly in the hospital.

This is one of the most flourishing villages in the county, and has, in the St. Elmo House as good a hotel and as well kept as any in this section of the State. Mr. Eice, the proprietor, is a hotel man in every sense of the word, watchful of the interests and comfort of his guests, and kind and obliging at all times.

The home dramatic company of which Eldred is justly proud and which played in your town Tuesday evening last, made quite a demonstration when leaving town on their way to Smethport. There was much of the professional in their appearance, the earnestness of the manager, the large amount of baggage and every thing else, even down to the rheumy-eyed diminutive dog with a blue ribbon around its neck.

MINER MAN.

THERE'S always something that we feel a little anxious for you to know. This time we would respectfully call your attention to our spring business suits with strong, serviceable linings, which we are selling so low. There is no reason why we could not sell those suits for $3 more than we ask for them only our rule is to give full value to our customers for all the money they leave with us. Ask to see those when you are in. Perhaps you will be led to conclude that, whatever the price a man wants to pay, the best value for that price can always be obtained from GOODMAN & MARKS, the only one-price clothiers, 47 Main street, Bradford.

A Plausible Reason.

A friend of postmaster Mitchell of Kendall, takes exceptions to the views entertained by our Bradford correspondent as to Mr. Mitchell retaining, for a long time a democratic clerk in his employ, and gives as a reason for his so doing, that he had employed the man when no other would work for the wages offered, and only kept him afterward because of his faithful and efficient services. Taking this view of the matter there is no good reason to find fault with Mr. Mitchell.

IF spring weather ever should come Sprague seems to be well prepared with agricultural implements for the farmers.

Obituary.

The Jefferson city (Mo.) Tribune pays the following graceful tribute to the memory of a trusted employee, who was formerly a McKean county boy:

The column rules are once more turned and the TRIBUNE mourns the loss of another trusted employe. It is our painful duty this morning to announce the death of Scott Tenny, foreman of the TRIBUNE news room. On Monday morning, the 19th of the past month, he came to the office as usual, but feeling too unwell to work, returned home, a physician was summoned, and it was discovered that he was suffering with that dread disease, pneumonia. He rapidly grew worse, and though he had the best of medical attention, and was tenderly nursed by the hands of loving parents and devoted friends, the terrible disease could not be stayed, and yesterday morning at 8 o'clock his young spirit winged its flight to the beyond. Thus within a week has three homes been made desolate, and three promising young men have laid down the burden of life.

Scott Tenny was born in McKean county, Pennsylvania, on the 11th day of January, 1861, and was only 21 years, 2 months and 20 days old when he died. He came to Jefferson City with his parents 14 years ago.

He graduated with honor at the public high school of this city some 6 years ago, and learned his trade at the Journal office. He was a sober and industrious young man, thoroughly reliable and honest, and was ambitious to excel in everything he undertook. The position he held in the TRIBUNE office was a difficult one to fill, but he was always at his post, and discharged his duties as faithfully and intelligently as a man of maturer years could have done. Had he lived he would have been an ornament to his profession. But death's cold finger touched him in his budding manhood, and his pride and ambition availed him not, and his loving father and mother and brothers can only seek comfort in the thought of what might have been.

He was an honored member of the now disbanded Capital Guards, and was most proficient in the manual of arms.

He seemed to have a presentiment of his coming death, and three days before, requested his mother to have him buried in his uniform.

A Good Story About London Cabmen.

[The London Figaro.]

Cab stories proverbially go in coveys, and the one I have just related reminds me of another of an entirely different character, of which G. A. Sala was the hero. The great G. A. S. had returned from an extended continental trip, and as he said "au revoir" to a French friend stepping into a hansom at Charing-cross, the Jehu, thinking that the befurred and behooded gentlemen with the foreign accent must be a "bloomin' froggy," resolved to "try it on" with him. Mr. Sala said "Fleet street," and the driver commenced by driving straight up Adelaide street and turning into St. Martin's Lane. Mr. Sala, lost in his thoughts, did not even notice the cabby's eccentricity until the latter, convinced by his fare's silence that he was indeed a "forrener" boldly struck up through the Dials into Tottenham Court road. Then, awakening from his reverie as he passed the Old Horse Show, Mr. Sala took in the situation in a moment, and, being in no particular hurry to reach the Daily Telegraph office, determined to let events take their own course. The cabman, thoroughly assured by the time he had reached Euston road that he had "got a regular green un' and no 'error!'" kept boldly on up to the Hampton road, and so by Camden Road to the Nag's Head, when, not wanting to weary his horse too much he turned south and made via High street, City Road, and Aldersgate street to the postoffice, and, so by way of Ludgate Hill to the office he had been told to drive to. Then, slowly alighting and taking a good look at his driver, Mr. Sala, as he put a silver shilling into his outstretched hand, only murmured, "Oh! you funny dog!" and disappeared leisurely up Peterborough Court. The rest of the anecdote is not quite fit for promiscuous publication.

Senatorial Apportionment.

An actual or supposed difficulty has been found in apportioning the State into fifty senatorial districts of equal population and joined together as the constitution requires. Because this discovery was made by the Republicans in the Legislature, the Democrats have naturally assumed that no such difficulty exists, and that the discovery was made to defeat an apportionment bill. Just why the Republicans should want to defeat an apportionment bill any more than the Democrats, is not stated, nor could it be. The difficulty as stated, and apparently correctly, is that the Constitution requires the State to be divided into exactly fifty Senatorial districts of as nearly as possible the same population, and that where parts of more than one county compose a district that the counties from which the district is created shall join each other. Lebanon county not having a sufficient population to enable it to constitute a separate district, of course it should be joined to some other county or part of a county. But the difficulty is that the counties adjoining Lebanon cannot be so divided as to take in Lebanon and create Senatorial districts of contiguously adjoining territory. Now, this is a fact or it is not. If the Republicans claim that it is, then all the Democrats have to do is to show that it is not a fact, and overcome it. It would be much better for the Democrats to discover a way out of the difficulty than to impugn the motives of those who discovered it, or think they have. There is no partisan question involved. It is a constitutional difficulty, demonstrated mathematically, or it is not. If no such difficulty exists, all the Democrats have to do is to brush the supposed difficulty aside and pass a proper apportionment bill, but if it is an actual difficulty then it is the duty of Republicans to see that the provisions of the Constitution are not brushed aside by the Democrats.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Various Causes—

advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume.

HOW WATCHES ARE MADE.

In a SOLID GOLD WATCH, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus gold is actually needless. In James Boss' Patent Gold Watch Cases this WASTE is saved, and SOLIDITY and STRENGTH increased by a simple process, at one-half the cost. A plate of SOLID GOLD is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this the cases, backs, centers, bezels, etc., are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and engine turning. These cases have been worn perfectly smooth by use without removing the gold. This is the only case made under this process. Each case is accompanied with a valid guarantee signed by the manufacturers warranting it to wear 20 years. 150,000 of these Cases now carried in the United States and Canada. Largest and Oldest Factory. Established 1854. Ask your Jeweler.

OFFICE OF OSGOODBY'S IMPROVED SAFES
113 Broad Street,
ATLANTA, GA., Dec. 17th, 1881.
Dr. Rush's Medical Association:
DEAR DOCTORS—The three bottles of "Dr. Rush's Regulator" I ordered were received by express last week. I have taken nearly one bottle and am thoroughly satisfied with the result. For over two years I have been troubled with sharp pains in my heart. My physicians, upon examination, pronounced it an enlargement of the heart, and were unable to give me any relief. The trouble grew worse, until I had become convinced that I could not be cured. While in New York City, last week I called on one of the most prominent physicians there, who charged me $25 for an examination and then recommended your "Regulator." Knowing you to be a regular Medical Association, and not a patent medicine scheme, I ordered the three bottles. I have not been troubled since I commenced taking it, but shall continue and take the entire three bottles, so as to obtain a permanent cure. I am, gentlemen, very respectfully,
WM. G. OSGOODBY.

Dr. Rush's Medical Association:
GENTLEMEN—I have been troubled with rheumatism for two years. I tried all the best advertised oils and liniments, and many first-class physicians without relief. The last doctor I visited recommended Dr. Rush's "Blood Root Oil." I purchased a large bottle for fifty cents, and applied it. In two hours I was relieved, and now am entirely well. Its effects are wonderful, and I believe it the only thing in the world which will cure rheumatism.
Truly Yours,
JOHN HUTCHINSON,
30 Erie St., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Lecture to Young Men on the Loss of MANHOOD
A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment and Radical cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhoea induced by Self-Abuse, Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally; Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c.—by ROBERT J. CULVERWELL, M. D., author of the "Green Book," &c.
The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without dangerous surgical operations, bougies, instruments, rings or cordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
☞ This Lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands.
Sent under seal in a plain envelope, to any address, on receipt of six cents or two postage stamps. Address,
